

Infusing ancient techniques into modern veterinary practice

Bush House Veterinary Group

Treating large and small animals in Carmarthenshire

Llandovery Surgery 01550 720382
open 5 days a week, 8.30 - 5.30 pm

Llandeilo Surgery 01558 822254
open 5 days a week, 9 - 6.00 pm

Ammanford Surgery 01269 592113
open 5 days a week, 9 - 5.30 pm

Cross Hands Surgery 01269 842318
open 5 days a week, 9-5.30 pm

Veterinary Acupuncture Clinic

Bush House Vet
Group

Get in touch today to discuss whether or not acupuncture would be a good choice for your pet

What is acupuncture?

Acupuncture is a therapeutic technique dating back to nearly 4000 years ago. It involves using a needle (acus - needle) to stimulate (punctura – puncture) specific points that can cause the body to respond in a specific manner. The desired outcome is a result of the body's reaction biochemically and physiologically to the needles' stimulation of the nervous system, and 80% of mammals respond to this technique.

Is acupuncture painful for my pet?

Occasionally the needles will feel strange, but the sensation is usually brief; most animals relax and some even fall asleep while being treated!

The most common conditions that are referred for acupuncture treatment are musculoskeletal disorders, but it can also be used to treat dermatologic and nervous disorders, as well as respiratory and hormonal problems.

Are there any side effects?

Because acupuncture balances the body's own nerves and chemical responses without adding any extra substances, there are very few complications. You may notice a slight change in temperament – either being a little lazier or a little more energetic, while the effects of treatment set in. This is due to the delicate balancing of body systems during treatment.

How much does it cost?

Price List:

- Initial session: £50
- Continuing sessions: £40
- 15% discount for booking 6 sessions together
- 10% discount for booking 3 sessions together
- DenPlan clients will receive 15% discount for both block bookings

NB: Many pet insurance policies will cover the cost of veterinary acupuncture treatment

Ffairfach Surgery
34 Towy Terrace
Ffairfach
Llandeilo
SA19 6ST
Telephone: 01558 822254
Email:
llandeilo@bushhousevetgroup.co.uk